Reaching out of his window, he froze. His surroundings had changed dramatically since the last time he looked at it. The snow on the ground had turned into a filthy white sludge. He could see figures moving in the distance, not familiar shapes like the ones that had waited patiently on the platform for him to arrive. It was as if the endless, glittering Christmas lights that surrounded the Tsalen Church had been blackened out. People going by in the dark, pointed their heads in directions that suggested they were looking for someone. They let their eyes travel in all directions as if searching for somebody to tell them where to go. Getting his first look at the blaze as it spread, he knew that . Reaching out of his window, he froze. His surroundings had changed dramatically since the last time he looked at it. The snow on the ground had turned into a filthy white sludge. He could see
